Did you know?

Malmaison Newcastle occupies a position on the Quayside adjacent to the new Millennium Bridge and looking across the Tyne towards the Baltic and Sage on the Gateshead side. The hotel, with its elegant art nouveau entrance canopy, inhabits Newcastle's former quayside Co-operative Society warehouse. (1900-02).

This is probably the oldest surviving large scale ferro concrete building in the country. It was constructed between 1897 and 1900 by T.G. Guerrite of L.G. Mouchel's firm for the Co-operative Wholesale Society (F.E.L. Harris of CWS, architect)
